Wanted: A Woman To Advise Freshmen

His wife, Barbara, a 40-year-old, Red Bank, Pa., and "laid off" from Hall's Tool and Die Shop, says to help her husband to change his life to find out the work they need to find the most satisfying way to help the local community and other women, and help with her personal problems that may arise throughout the year.

The job is not an easy one, and the adviser is "on call" 24 himself. The latter, he maintains, is not an "average" child, but a child with a "problem" or "helping" problem. The wife's specific reaction to the first-born is being a woman completely absorbed in the power of verbal expression.

Formerly, volunteers were paid for their work by this method, but it was abandoned in the fall of 1961 to enhance women to take the position with the primary motive of counseling, and not of making money. "We did lose a few who couldn't afford to work without being paid, but on the whole, the caliber of the group is much higher now," said Miss Dixie Evans, director of Women's Residence Halls.

Because of the shortage of advisers this year, several freshman women were selected as student trainees. These freshmen are responsible for the corridor, but do not have full responsibility as advisers. Some of these advisers may apply for positions as advisers next year.

Applications for freshman advisers for next year will be available very soon in each women's residence hall.

Attorney General Enters Peterson Investigation

"The thing in question here is whether there have been violations of conflict of interest laws, criminal laws, or statutory prohibitions against public officials engaging in private business in their public capacity," he said.

Peterson was suspended by the UK Board of Trustees Monday after Gov. Bert Combs accused him of using his position for personal gain. Peterson charged political gain was involved and Combs denied it.

A Step Backward

Last Monday's decision of the Student Congress not to endorse an integration policy in off-campus restaurants is nothing more than a humbling step backwards in the total march towards recognition as an important institution of higher learning.

Those who voted against endorsing a letter drawn up by the Interfaith Council to permit Negro students to eat in restaurants near campus have in fact taken a basic moral issue into their own hands.

It's certainly true that there is no legal way to force a man to open his business establishment to everyone. However, the decision of the UK Student Congress to voice strong objection to the continuation of off-campus segregation would help pave the way for the movement which only reactionary minds now actively resist.

Gen. Bert T. Combs, through the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights, has sent 7,000 letters to managers of restaurants, theaters, hotels, motels, and other places of public accommodation throughout the commonwealth. These letters ask the Kentucky businessman to serve all persons regardless of race, creed, or color.

The main concern of most businessmen is that their business will fall off if they integrate their facilities. A detailed and objective report shows this to be false.

Dr. A. Lee Coleman and Bruce H. Mayhew Jr., of the University Social Research Service, conducted a study for the Commission on Human Rights involving interviews with managers of 46 desegregated eating places.

Reports the Commission, "The overwhelming majority had experienced no significant problems. They said their policy had worked out better than they had expected and that they had not lost white customers."

This study answers critics like Gene Sayre, SC Arts and Sciences representative, who argued that definite action might lead to jeopardizing the proprietor's business.

Sayre voiced the opinions of many in his argument that Negro students had several places on campus to eat during the week and the K-Lair Grill was open on Sunday nights; so that eating facilities were available to all students on campus.

The argument has absolutely no relationship to the issue at hand. It wouldn't make any difference if there were 100 on campus eating facilities open to Negroes at all times. Off-campus segregation would still be un-American, un-Christian, and immoral.

We urge the Student Congress to reconsider their decision.

Humiliating Scene

To The Editor:

I have just witnessed an humiliating scene. A Negro man entered a restaurant just across the street from our campus, placed his order, and then stood waiting while it was prepared even though the place was nearly empty. He paid the waitress, took his sack, and left.

When I asked the proprietor why he didn't serve the man, he said he had seen too many white customers get up and leave when a Negro sat down and that he could not afford to risk his business by serving Negroes. From his viewpoint, this is a very practical argument. He probably would lose some customers if he tried to treat negroes as human beings.

The responsibility for such discourteous actions rests with us, the white people. That this could happen just across the street from this campus reflects the civic irresponsibility of you and me. Most of us support integration in principle but not in fact. If we really believe in the individual rights of all men and were willing to accept our civic duty, such incidents would not go unnoted.

If we demonstrated to restaurant owners that they would also lose customers by not serving Negroes, we would not have to live with such degrading incidents.

Welcome Journalists

Good journalists are needed, not just for the purpose of telling the truth, but for the purpose of interpreting the truth. They are needed to help us understand the world around us, to help us make sense of the news that we hear and read. They are needed to help us make decisions about the future of our country and our world.

Journalism is a challenge, but it is a rewarding profession. The journalist is a part of all that is current, and his duties lie in recording accurately for history the events of his time. This is why we feel that good journalists must be made or trained, for they are peddling the wares of understanding and ultimately, world peace.

Accurate, clearly expressed thought is the sole benefactor of understanding, and in today's hectic pace, when international relations are sometimes as snarled as traffic jams, it is easy to see the urgent need for meaningful communication.

A newspaper is the one media that can do the most towards this type of needed interpretative communication. Television, radio do not carry the impact of the printed word. They do not have the time or the facilities for reporting the news and events in depth as do newspapers. A minute misceant is scantly interpretative, speaks, forgets, and easily can be misled. When a newspaper stands for a high ideal, it is a force for good. There is a chance for a better world, and more peace, if we have good journalists. This is the new role of the newspaper. Let it be a force for good, for a new responsibility must be met.

Journalism is a challenge, but it is a rewarding profession. The journalist is a part of all that is current, and his duties lie in recording accurately for history the events of his time. This is why we feel that good journalists must be made or trained, for they are peddling the wares of understanding and ultimately, world peace.

As high school journalists you now have the opportunity to evaluate your newspaper in relation to the demands and needs of today's journalism. We hope that the evaluation will prove to be meaningful for you as a journalist, to your high school, and your newspaper.

You will discover that journalism can be many things to many people, but for you, it may be a career.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disagrees With SC To The Editor:

In my opinion, the Student Congress has, by its voting, showed a distinct ethical or perhaps moral laxity which is unworthy of a group representing the students of this University. What is the responsibility of the Congress, the welfare of restaurant proprietors, or that of the students?

If the welfare of the students is at mind, it can scarcely be served by sending them to the K-Lair which is often closed. The location of the K-Lair makes it inconvenient for many of the students who would, for practical purposes, be forced to use it.

Since the Student Congress lacks the courage to endorse a policy of integration, I suggest that others do so. Refusing to eat at segregated establishments may cause personal inconvenience, but in face of the goods to be accomplished, the sacrifice would be well worth while so those with the sincerity of conviction which would enable them to make it.

Who Was Responsible? To The Editor:

While the University is investigating the activities of Mr. Peterson, we might ask those in charge to look into some other areas as well.

After Mr. Peterson lost control of the vending machine situation in 1961 according to the Kernel, most of his older machines were removed. But the newer, more modern, selling essential life saving products, now dated, useless, instead of a racket.

Someone appears to be taking advantage of our students in this vending machine area. But it might be someone other than Mr. Peterson. Who is responsible for the switch to these dated and useless?

Explains Library Problem To The Editor:

In reference to your editorial in yesterday's Kernel, it was not possible to equip the building immediately upon occupancy. Panic hardware for the three outside doors at the foot of stairwells, as well as a great deal of other essential furniture (for example, the equipment for the circulation area), is on order or in the process of being ordered through the customary channels.

Expresses Shock To The Editor:

I feel that I represent a large segment of the student body of this University when I speak of the shock I feel toward the decision of Student Congress not to recommend that nearby restaurants open their long-closed doors to Negroes.

I am very proud that my University integrated peacefully over a decade ago. I am not as proud, however, that the classmates of these "accepted" Negroes have declined to even recommend to these businessmen that we do not mind eating beside these students.

I am not a member of Student Congress, and I am therefore not aware of the full proceedings of that meeting. However, I can understand the logic in opposing this action. How could it have jeopardized the business of these restaurants to have integrated to the owner's? A huge sign at the foot of the stairs of their patronage went not in objection to eating with Negroes. We did not accept the opposed suggestion have served a much more constructive purpose.

Ever since their first meeting with the American public-at-large via their initial appearance on the Jack Paar Show, the Smothers Brothers, Tom and Dick, have shown every sign of becoming a national institution. Never before has such devastating wit been coupled with such versatile musicology. The result is as unusual as it is exciting.

Singing Duo To Appear

The Smothers Brothers, Tom and Dick, who really are brothers, began their career at the Purple Onion in San Francisco. They were hired for two weeks and remained for four months. Since their engagement at the Purple Onion, they have appeared at the new Jack Paar Show, the Danny Thomas Show, the Mary Griffin Show, the Bob Crosby Special, the Perry Como Show and night clubs across the nation. However, this will be their first performance in Kentucky.

The rest is history. Today they are both in their early twenties and they have earned the attention and applause of pleased audiences all over the nation. Since their first exposure it's been onward and upward for this exuberantly zany team, whose future could hardly be brighter.

All tickets for the concert are for general admission on a first-come-first-serve basis. Advance side tickets will be $2 and can be obtained at Graves Cox, Barney Miller's, Kennedy Bookstore, Campus Bookstore, Dawkins, and Hearn and Donovan Hall. In Lexington, Md. order should be sent to The Little Kennedy Derby Co. University of Kentucky, Lexington. Tickets at the door will be $2.50.

CATALES

By Richard Stevenson

Golf promoters and golf lovers have done a magnificent job for their sport. Every Saturday and Sunday a television viewer can watch several hours of match play—or even three extensive golf programs on the same afternoon. For tennis players there is only the once-a-year televising of the last two days of the National Championships, an occasional program that is broadcast locally and, rarely, a professional match. This is strange and most unfortunate since there are more tennis players than golfers in the United States.

The most memorable tennis match ever to be televised was played between Pancho Gonzales and Andres Gimeno in Mexico City. The photography was superb and so was the play. It was not only exciting for every sports fan but it also gave the tennis player a great lesson in strokes, strategy and concentration.

The success of the golf programs on TV is due to the excellent cutting of the film. Many of the strokes are dramatized and many holes are only summarized. One does not see the endless parade of players walking the five miles of the golf course—as endless a procedure as that of tennis players toweling off on odd games. The comments often come from the players themselves, and at the end of the match there is frequently an instructional tidbit.

If this were done in tennis, a million youngsters would be able to benefit from watching the play of the great stars and hearing the commentary by their equally great cohorts. The big sorrow of Americans has been our utter failure in Davis Cup play during the last three years. Viewing the best in action would not only be of enormous instructional value to the young players, but the excitement of these matches would attract more youngsters of athletic talent into the sport. The millions of players who do not compete in tournaments would not only receive great pleasure from watching these matches, but they would also absorb a bit of what they had seen into their own games.

The success of these programs would be contingent upon the photography, the cutting and the commentary. The Gonzales-Gimeno match was a model in all three respects. It was impossible to watch it without becoming deeply disinterested. The outcome was always in doubt and every point gave almost pleasure to the viewers. As for the camera, Dick Knicker stands by himself as the best of all time. No one has played in nor viewed so many great matches, and his comments are succinct, well-delivered and to the point.

Two months ago the touring pros played a series of matches in Australia designed for television. Some of them may be inspiring, but we will never know if the networks and sponsors are not sold on the show. If you want to see One suggestion is that every tennis player write a letter to the three national television networks. You can do even better than that. Pass your letter around and get 20 or 40 or even 100 of your friends to sign it.

Every player on a high school or college team, every pro at a club or resort, every editor of a local tennis publication, every "regular" at the municipal courts, every city and state tennis official and every member of a tennis club has an obligation, if he wishes to see more of the sport he loves, to enlist every friend in a campaign to put tennis on TV.

Seneca, Taylor, Harrison, Dotson Survive

Ashland, Newport, Daviess Fall In High School Regional Play

Ashland, Newport Public, and Daviess County fell Wednesday night as a wave of upsets hit the first round of Regional high school basketball tournaments in Kentucky.

Favored Princeton Dotson, Louisville Seneca, Breathitt County, and Taylor County all won as expected, but not without some close calls.

Wednesday night's games finished first round play in five of the 16 regions. The other 11 were just opening play.

Newport, 93-63 regular season conqueror of Campbell County, fell before the Camels, 55-54 in overtime.

Campbell's Tom Russell sank the second of a two-shot foul situation with 11 seconds remaining in the extra period to hand Newport the victory. Guard Rich Feller's basket with 22 seconds remaining in regulation time sent the game into overtime and deprived Newport of the victory.

Most experts were expecting Newport Public and city town rivals, Campbell, to battle it out in Seneca's final for the tourney crown. Public beat Campbell by one in the district final but Seneca made Campbell's bid for a second straight title in the North Region a loss.

Campbell's Tom Russell sank the second of a two-shot foul situation with 11 seconds remaining in the extra period to hand Newport the victory. Guard Rich Feller's basket with 22 seconds remaining in regulation time sent the game into overtime and deprived Newport of the victory.

Seneca Tops AP's Final Ratings

Last week Seneca fought off a determined Owensboro Senior team to finish atop the final Associated Press high school basketball ratings of the year.

Johnnie Seneca and Senior in the top five are Breathitt County, Harrison County, and Princeton Dotson, in that order.

The final rating showed 28 schools gathering votes in the poll. Six of these schools are in the Second Region. They are Dotson, Earlington, Madisonville, Christian County, Livingston Central, and Trigg County. All six made it to the Regional tournament.

The complete poll is as follows:

Seneca	129
Owensboro	115
Breathitt	93
Harrison	84
Dotson	75
Newport	61
Elizabethtown Catholic	50
Carr Creek	41
Duncan	34
Daviess County	28

The other schools (in alphabetical order): Christian County, Earlington, Garrett, Greenville, Knox Central, Livingston Central, DeSales, Lowes, Madison Central, Madisonville, Maysville, Middlesboro, Newport Catholic, Oldham County, Somerset, Paducah Tilghman, Taylor County, and Trigg County.

each. Dixie Jack Wilson and Butch Brownfield, however, shared game honors with 20 apiece.

Ashland's last second tip-in try was ruled to have come after the horn, to give Olive Hill the two-point win. The Comets' Tommy Greenhill hit a free toss with only 11 seconds, following one by Wade Den, to give Olive Hill the winning point.

Greenhill's free throw set the stage for the Tomcats' last ditch effort to tie and send the game into overtime. Ken Johnson took the shot for the Tomcats, but missed. Dave Turpin then tipped the ball in, but it was ruled it was too late.

A balanced scoring attack paced Winchester St. Asaetha over Hichins, 70-55, in the other game in the 16th. Hatton's 22 points topped the corn for St. Asaetha as three other players also finished in double figures.

Paducah's double entry in the First Region, Tilghman and St. Mary, both posted victories in first round play.

Mike Taylor's 19 points paced St. Mary's over Catholic Central, 63-40, in the opening game of the 16th. Taylor's 13 points and 11 rebounds led Tilghman to a 54-32 victory over Morehead in the 16th.

All three teams in the 16th Region were in the top 100 of the AP's final ratings. Seneca, Campbell, and Newport Public were in the top 100, while Ashland and Newport were in the 100-200 range.

Campbell's Tom Russell sank the second of a two-shot foul situation with 11 seconds remaining in the extra period to hand Newport the victory. Guard Rich Feller's basket with 22 seconds remaining in regulation time sent the game into overtime and deprived Newport of the victory.
